

Photograph taken in the Easter Island
July 2011

Analysis abstract

2 or 3 seconds passed between the different photos shot by the witness, enough to let the object disappear. The photo above is the only shooting in which the object appeared.

After having filtered and refined the image, we noted that the object did not have any wing or tail.

The object was very large as we could tell from the pixels' size. They appeared mixed up with the background, and yet we could clearly see it.

If it was an insect, the pixels composing it would be larger due to its proximity with the camera.

This case is in the process of analysis.

